A WORD FROM OUR PASTOR

We continue to maintain our separation and distance. I don't think we will ever get used to this way of life, but maybe a few will feel called to live in a monastery after all of this is over. I actually thought about a monastic vocation early on in my discernment about where God was calling me. These days confirm that I listened to God's voice and did not go that route.

Sincere appreciation continues to all who are maintaining support of the parish! Our staff has been working with great diligence and at our weekly staff meeting (via google hangout) we continue to work on ways to stay in touch with you and how we will welcome you back when the stay at home orders are lifted.

The Monday after Easter, I was asked with all pastors to submit a plan for how we will maintain staff, pay bills, and provide services, to the diocesan controller, human resources department, and insurance and benefits department. I and each member of our staff are grateful that your ongoing generosity has made that easier than most parishes. Looking at the long-range possibilities, the leadership at the diocese wants us to work on 'plan b' by May 15 in case this situation continues for a long time. Besides your financial support, please keep our parish and staff in your prayers!

We appreciate the many good comments we have received from the live streamed Mass each Sunday. Sometimes, more people have tuned in than on occasion attend on Sundays! That clearly identifies that we are all in need spiritually and psychologically during this crisis. Please check out the parish website for other devotional and educational links that can further feed these basic needs.

Easter continues for 50 days and some might question if that is enough time to understand what the mercy of God means by the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus. A good friend, Fr. Richard Vega, offered this reflection that I believe is worth reading and thinking about.

"In last week's first reading, Luke's description of the early Christian community, in the Acts of the Apostles, comes after presenting Peter's sermon explaining Jesus' life, death and resurrection. The people listening to Peter ask the same question, as had those who heard John the Baptist at the beginning of the Gospel: "What are we to do?" Peter's response led 3,000 people to seek baptism that day.

During the 50 days of Easter, we hear that early Christians were an intensely communal people whose life was marked by three characteristic activities: They attended to the teaching of the apostles, they lived in solidarity and they prayed together.

This meant first that they attended to their own growth in faith by reflecting together on their Scriptures, their experience of the historical Jesus, and the signs and wonders happening in their midst. Members of the early Christian community found themselves in the unexpected position of having to thoroughly rethink their faith traditions in the light of what God had done through Jesus. Their reflections became the "source" for the narratives and teachings of what we call the Christian Scriptures. Our earliest sisters and brothers in the faith played a crucial role in our communal history. The second activity that characterized the community was life in solidarity. Their way of being a community was a response to their experience of God among them. The more deeply they were aware of God's love, mercy, and forgiveness, the more they created practices that gave concrete expressions and structures to prolong the experience of grace they felt among them. To the extent that they knew themselves to be loved without measure and called into union with God and one another, rivalry and hoarding made no sense. The thought that some of them might lack what they needed would have been a source of pain and shame.

The third dimension of their communal life was shared prayer. They prayed in their traditional way at the temple area as well in their unique way by celebrating the Eucharist, the breaking of the bread. Their celebration of the breaking of the bread gave sacramental expression to their participation in Christ's self-giving. Saying that they ate their meals with exultation illustrates their basic attitude of gratitude, their awareness of God's grace in their life together. Luke also says they shared with "sincerity" of heart, something that must have been quite special because the word he used to describe it is not found elsewhere in Christian Scriptures.

Different translations try to convey the idea of sincerity of heart as "with glad and generous hearts" or "singleness of heart." It may well be that Luke was simply warming up here for what he would say when he stated that the community was of "one heart and mind". Whether understood as transparency, generosity or unity, sincerity of heart was an attitude based in the grace of feeling that they were called together for more than themselves.

Peter's letter begins with a blessing which recognizes that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, the merciful Father. It then says that it is the Father who has given us new birth through resurrection. Peter use of the term "new birth" refers more to "bringing a child into existence" than to the act of being born. Being begotten by God implies a new creation, a change so profound that every dimension of who we are is transformed. Being begotten anew speaks of an entirely new trajectory, a reorientation, a thoroughly transformed existence. When we read John's accounts of the community and their experience of the risen Christ, we do well to remember that John wrote for a community that was already formed, a group of disciples who met regularly and were carrying on their mission. John tells the stories of the past to remind us of who we are and what we are called to do.

At the end of the first day of the new creation Jesus returned to his assembled disciples. They are depicted as a fearful group and Thomas' absence tells us that while some had gathered, the group was still scattered. John doesn't tell us exactly where they were hiding out, but he does mention that the doors were securely locked. Jesus had promised that they would see him again and now he appears, returning to them and giving them the peace, he promised.

The appearance of Christ, his gift of peace and his Spirit, and the mission to forgive are all intimately bound together. We see God's initiative, the divine outreach, and the commission he gives. The disciples' experience begins with receiving Christ's peace, a peace so dynamic that they are impelled to share it with others through the mission of forgiveness.

In between Christ's two appearances John simply indicates that the disciples had gathered again, and this time, Thomas was there, symbolizing that the group was complete. The previously dispersed disciples had heard enough to come together and for John it is significant that it was on another first day, the day when the community traditionally celebrated the Lord's Supper. Jesus appeared in the midst of his disciples to give them peace, a peace that would impel them to mission, a peace that would underpin a community of solidarity and mission. We know Christ's peace only when we get caught up in the dynamic of his ever-expanding forgiving love. That's the journey we are called to deepen in the 50 days of Easter."

PRAYER FOR A SPIRITUAL COMMUNION

My Jesus,
I believe that you are present in the Most Holy Sacrament.
I love you above all things and I desire to receive you in my soul.
Since I cannot at this moment receive you sacramentally,
Come at least spiritually into my heart.
I embrace you as if you were already there
And unite myself wholly to you.
Never permit me to be separated from you.
Amen.

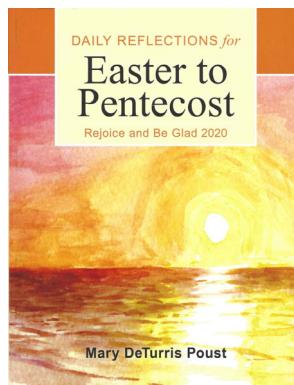

We hope you will use this prayer for Spiritual Communion when you are watching our Sunday live-stream Mass at 10:00 am or any Mass on TV or a taped Mass.

LIVING GOD'S WORD

As many have said, life is a journey. Faith, too. And journeys take us to all sorts of unexpected places, or else they're not really journeys. Faith can be one of those unexpected turns in the road that make the journey new.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Adult: In what way have you come to know Jesus better through the breaking of the bread at Eucharist?

Child: When you join Jesus at the table of the Eucharist next Sunday, what would you like to thank him for?

FOUR SIMPLE WAYS TO CELEBRATE HOLY WEEK AT HOME

CREATE A SIMPLE PRAYER SPACE IN YOUR HOME, AND GATHER THERE TO PRAY.

Families continue to spend more time together at home. One good use of this time is to pray together on a regular basis. This prayer time together can be enhanced by creating a place in your home dedicated to prayer.

Making a place for prayer in our home can help us do what the Gospel tells us, to go into an "inner room" to pray (Matthew 6:6). Make your prayer place as quiet, uncluttered, and "desert-like" as possible. It can be the corner of a room or any unused space. Furnish your prayer place with a Bible, prayer books, cross, rosary, icons, and a candle. Encourage family members to use the prayer place for personal as well as family prayer.

Look online for other suggestions for praying together as a family at home, to deepen and enrich your experience at this time of social isolation.
